Hon. W. C. Kennedy Collegiate Institute

This is a remarkable year in the history of our country and our school. Canada looks back on her first one hundred years, and sees, in spite of overwhelming geographical and cultural difficulties, her people achieving the impressive feat of nation-building. And she looks forward into a new century of accomplishment with confidence.

For Kennedy Collegiate, 1967 is a year of expanding horizons. We, too, look backward with pride on our students, parents, and teachers who have given Kennedy, through their honourable achievements, an honourable name. They have learned that the school year is not an easy one. Education must shake us to our foundations, for foundations are its business. Honourable and productive citizenship can be built only on strong foundations. Our students have been asked to examine these, to be encouraged, or to rebuild. The rewards for successful building are a share in all the best man can do, a share in all the happiness he can receive. Kennedy Collegiate still teaches these truths; that is why we can eagerly look forward to our new horizons.

And they will be exciting horizons, for Kennedy, itself, is rebuilding. We are opening a new wing to serve our students through better facilities, and a new library to promote research and study, the keystones of education. The new library will be a permanent commemoration of Canada's centennial. It will house Canadian reference books bound in blue and gold. To complete this project, Kennedy called on students, parents and friends for support - and has received it. To these patrons we give our sincere thanks, for we have learned that, only when the community supports its schools, can the schools give good citizens in return. In all honesty we can say, 1967 will be a proud year for our school.

May we extend our thanks to those who have contributed to the Kencoll in the past, and our best wishes to those who will be responsible for it in the future.

M.C.T.

Our Principal     Mr. M. C. Thomson

After 28 years of service to Kennedy Collegiate as teacher and principal, Mr. Thomson becomes Superintendent of Secondary Schools in September. We at K.C.I. are extremely proud of our principal, and rejoice that his wisdom and guidance will benefit all schools in Windsor in the future as they have done for us in the past. We wish him every success and happiness - yet are reluctant to see him go, because we realize that a great man has been among us. His parting will cause a tremendous void but he leaves with us, however, a legend - one that will endure and will be cherished as long as our collegiate stands.

"Without effort, there can be no learning", Mr. Thomson has told us often. Our tribute to our principal and friend will be a determined effort to live up to his high standard.

SHAKESPEARE AND HIS TIME

unfortunate that we know so little about this man, who is given so much of beauty and enjoyment to the world. The facts and some reasonable conjectures based on them are all we have to go on. As he was baptized on April 23, 1564, he was probably born three days earlier, on April 20. According to the usual custom then in the church, the eldest of seven children, he was the son of a man of some importance in Stratford-upon-Avon. Shakespeare must have been a delightful place for a boy to grow up. There were entertainments in his business ventures. His mother was Mary Arden, daughter of a small but prosperous landowner in the neighbouring county. There were entertainments in his business ventures. ## JULIUS CAESAR

He attended a grammar school in Stratford where the schoolmaster, as in all such schools, was on Latin. How long he remained there we do not know, but he very likely left during a period of lowered fortunes in his father's business affairs. Of his next few years we know scarcely anything, but at eighteen he married Anne Hathaway, eight years older than he, who lived in adjacent Shottery and whose father's home, now known as Anne Hathaway's Cottage, is a point of interest yearly for thousands of

The house in which Shakespeare was born. Stratford visitors. Three children were born of the marriage: Susannah in 1583 and twins, Hamnet and Judith, two years later. Between 1585 and 1591 Shakespeare moved to London where he became an actor and playwright and in time part owner of the Globe Theatre. Between 1592 and 1611 he wrote all his famous plays and sonnets, the former of which are listed in their respective periods of writing on page of this introduction. When we consider just a few

WHAT EXACTLY IS EDUCATION?

The world presents an infinite number of possibilities for education. In all the world there is not one man who can truthfully say, "I know everything there is to know about every thing."

A man acquires education like a youngster on his way through a forest trying to pick up as many rocks as possible to take with him.

Education is a life long process; a maturation of the mind; the day to day acquiring of knowledge; in the modern world, the sole method of surviving in the race against machines. Education continues until death, and who can say, that it does not continue after death for that period of life is still unknown.

Education is living.

WHOSE WORLD?

A deer stood proudly
on a hill
He thought was his.

He stretched his noble neck and shook his stately antlers
in the sky.

His dark coat
glistened brightly
in the sun.

Gracefully,
He bowed his head
to drink water
from the stream
He thought
was his.

A piercing shot echoed through the hills.

MR. CYRIL SNEED

On the surface, Mr. Cyril Sneed appeared as a very shy and rather elderly bachelor. Each morning he emerged from his front door at precisely eight thirty holding a neat little attache case in a neatly gloved hand. Each morning he stopped at the corner of the street to buy a newspaper which he then folded and tucked neatly under his arm, and each morning as he travelled on the crowded subway to his office, he occupied himself with the reading of his paper and tried to acquaint himself with the happenings that were taking place outside his own exceedingly narrow little world. When he had stepped off the train and the doors had closed behind him, no one on the train would have been able to identify him again. He was dull, negligible and insignificant.

However, when Mr. Cyril Sneed returned home each evening at precisely six, still neat and unruffled, his existence was completely different from that suggested by his undistinguished appearance. Mr. Cyril Sneed had a very strong belief. He believed that he was Julius Caesar.

In the evenings he doffed his immaculate business suit and bowler hat and attired himself in a toga and laurel wreath. The living room of his simple modest home became the meeting-place for a variety of reincarnated figures of history from Adam to Napoleon.

Mary, Queen of Scots, was one of his guests. Her tall thin frame and anaemic appearance was further accentuated by a white starched ruff which was so large as to almost hide her face. Dante and Cleopatra were deeply absorbed in conversation in one corner of the room. Near them, Noah in a simple brown v-necked tunic chatted with a woman whose powdered coiffure was adorned with rows of large pearls. A frustrated Michelangelo tried to help Julius Caesar's reincarnation remember his former tongue.

The following day when the insignificant Mr. Cyril Sneed had stepped off the subway, he was still unnoticed by anyone. However, just as each person in the train was too absorbed in himself to think of the unassuming Mr. Cyril Sneed as anything but a dull and elderly business man, Mr. Cyril Sneed thought of them as being unenlightened and narrow-minded beings.

Each person is the center of his own universe. A person, regarded by everyone else as dull and commonplace, may regard everyone else as dull and commonplace.

What can other people learn from a harmless eccentric such as Mr. Cyril Sneed? Mr. Sneed demonstrates that people are not made of common brown dust, but of stardust.

Ruth Raphael, 13B

I heard the birds singing in the fields far away,
 And the whistling of a boy gone fishing for a day;
 A ripple of laughter from the river's brink,
 And a joyous song from the bobolink.
 Some people don't find the time or thought
 To spend the time with the things God wrought;
 Nor do they take delight in beautiful flowers,
 Delicate and dainty as the result of showers.
 This sort of people has ne'er seen nor heard,
 Nor would understand, the song of a bird
 With its quivering note; now loud, now clear
 Comes the radiant sound saying dawn is here.
 But I spend my time with wonderful thinking,
 Of dancing narcissus: a little child blinking
 In wonder - that all growing in this sod
 Has been made by a wondrous master called God.

Barbara Campbell, 10B

A wink, a sigh, a smile - these are characteristics of the first meeting. Soon will follow a wild hide-and-seek game of infatuation, now cool and sweet, now hot and passionate.

You may spot her peering through the foliage, peeping round a corner, running down the path, her hair streaming, flying, dancing. You can try, but you will not catch her: no one has, or ever will. She is elusive, beguiling and full of wiles. Her face varies as her mood.

Now she plays the winsome maiden, fresh and pure. Her laughter ripples over the pebbles in a brook; her reflection shimmers on the placid lake; her secrets whisper through the rustling trees. She beckons you to follow.

Casting off her virgin cloak she becomes the sultry seductress. Sleep comes easily with her overpowering intoxicant. Tossing her head she defies man with her disdainful glances, her brisk brush-offs. She lures the innocent on to the cliffs of confidence only to slap them down into the pits of torment.

Again she unmask and becomes the raging vixen, biting and scratching all in her way. With cold cruelty she snaps at those who would dare to oppose her. She freezes at every advance.

Soon she will tire of this part and dress herself again in flowers and gentleness. Peace will envelop her soul and timidly she will call to you. Try as you might you can't deny her attention. Something deep within you will pull you towards her again and you will follow her.

She is proficient in many roles and adept at changing them as her will guides her. No one can train her; her mind is her own. Whether whole and pure, seductive, wild and restless, or frigid, she has the power to beckon you on. Her magnetic charm catches everyone; no one is free from her spell. Her vanity is never appeased. She finds pleasure in captivating and enticing others.

Call her what you will: adventuress, siren, vamp, flirt, coquette, maiden, she is still Nature.

BEER BOTTLE WORLD

Among all the world's great academies and schools of knowledge, there is one small group of men dedicated to the well-being of mankind who yet have never received the recognition duly owed them. Who are these men? They are the hearty men who spend most of their lives slugging it out in the hotels, the beer gardens, the bars, and the taverns, amassing their overwhelming quantity of knowledge.

These savants gather at any hour of any day to discuss any issue of any topic. There has never been, and never will be, another class of people so well versed in everything that they can, at a moment's notice, deliver a lengthy oration which is flawless in form and content. One quickly realizes, from the facts a beer-drinker uses, that there is nothing he doesn't know - as a matter of fact, it is safe to say he knows from nothing. What knowledge!

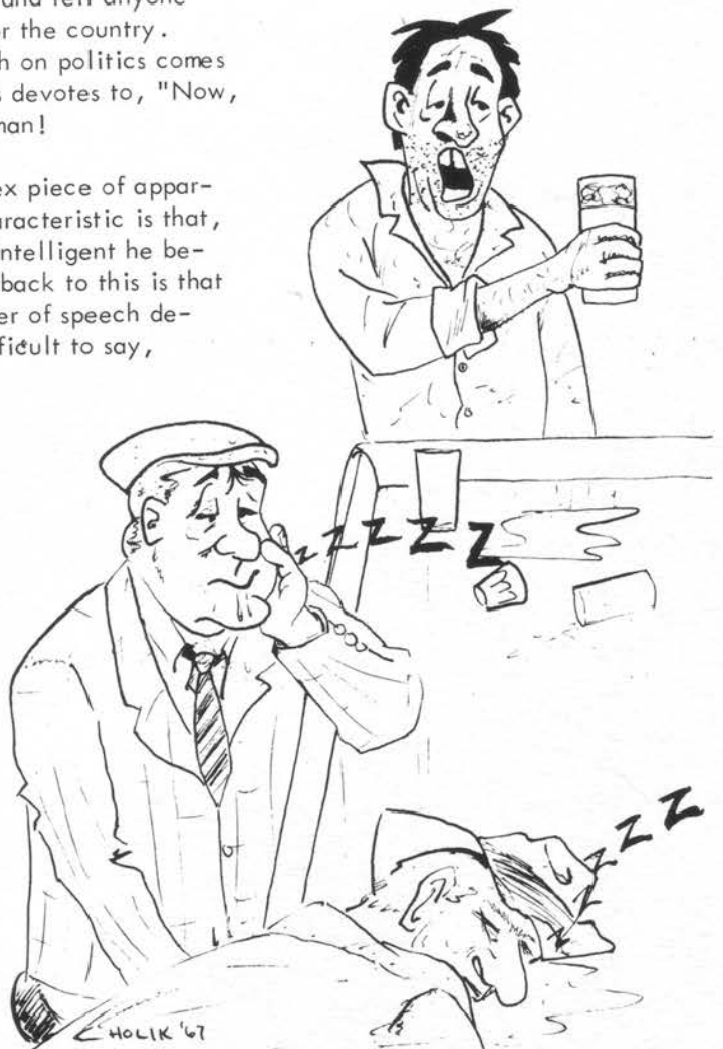

The beer-drinker must, without a doubt, be God's gift to the world. Mention the word politics and he starts. For hours on end he can sit and tell anyone eager enough to listen what is good for the country. However, the focal point of his speech on politics comes in the section the beer-drinker always devotes to, "Now, if I was Prime Minister ..." What a man!

The beer-drinker is a complex piece of apparatus. Perhaps his most remarkable characteristic is that, the more he guzzles down, the more intelligent he becomes. Unfortunately, a serious drawback to this is that as his intelligence increases, his power of speech decreases, and he sometimes finds it difficult to say, "Sally slid the slide on the slippery slope." Sometimes he even has trouble saying, "Hello there." What eloquence!

But, alas, his faults must be forgiven, for he keeps the breweries brewing, the economy alive, and men employed. The world would crumble without his kind - and yet, he is modest about it all: he demands no reward or privilege for his service. What a hero!

Don't you wish you were in his shoes?

Barry Brinkman, 13C

AN UNFINISHED LETTER

Dear Mother:

Today your little boy has grown up - today I killed a man. Is it justifiable to take the life of another man because our hypocritical society thinks so?

Man persists in destroying himself: war is only a legal excuse for committing cold blooded murder. What will our country actually benefit from it in the end? An acre of blood-stained land inhabited by discontents - more names to engrave on the honour plaque - more power because of victory. Not until we have eliminated all oppositions will we be satisfied.

A soldier's life is a rugged one. To survive one must not remember the security and warmth insured by the family, mouth-watering home-cooked meals, or the nightmarish yesterdays.

Mother, I wish you and father were here to help and guide me as you've done many times before. I am rather frightened by all this violence and I only pray that by God's will I shall live to see tomorrow ...

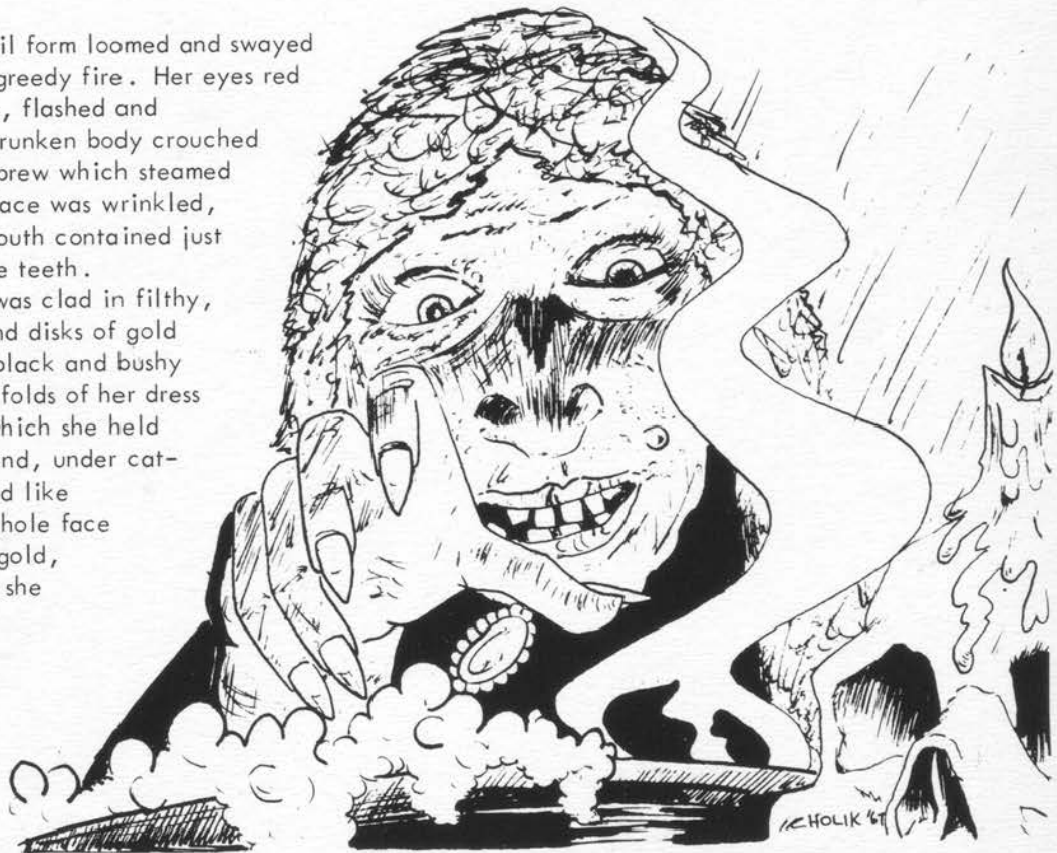

Irma Viski, 11C

THE GYPSY

Her gloomy and evil form loomed and swayed in the dim light of the greedy fire. Her eyes red and haunting as demons, flashed and flickered. Her small shrunken body crouched over a pot of witches' brew which steamed and bubbled. Her old face was wrinkled, and her small gaping mouth contained just a few crooked fang-like teeth.

The gypsy woman was clad in filthy, faded clothes. Big round disks of gold peeked from a mass of black and bushy hair. Out of the many folds of her dress she drew a medallion which she held in her dry shrivelled hand, under cat-like nails which pointed like deadly daggers. Her whole face was turned toward the gold, emotionless. Suddenly she shrieked! Hissing and muttering, she cursed and hurled the medallion into the bubbling brine.

UNDERSTANDING

Any man who thinks that biological differences are all that distinguish men and women is in trouble.

A woman is a strange creature, and it has become plain to me that she would rather be right than reasonable. A woman's main pastime is jumping to false conclusions, and even when the real conclusion is presented to her she will beat around the bush for several minutes before seeing it.

This brings to mind another feminine trait. When she is about to set forth for a dance or movie, a woman will proceed to say how awful she looks, that she wore the wrong clothes, that her hair looks like a mop, or she herself looks like a frowzy old fluzzy. The young man is now caught in a whirlpool with the sides closing in. What reassuring phrase is expected of him? Does he say, "No you are not a frowzy old fluzzy," which is unconvincing, or, "Yes you are the ugliest barracuda I have ever seen, you flowzy old fluzzy," which is not right even if she is. The hard truth is that there is nothing a man can say without bringing the roof down, so he holds his peace.

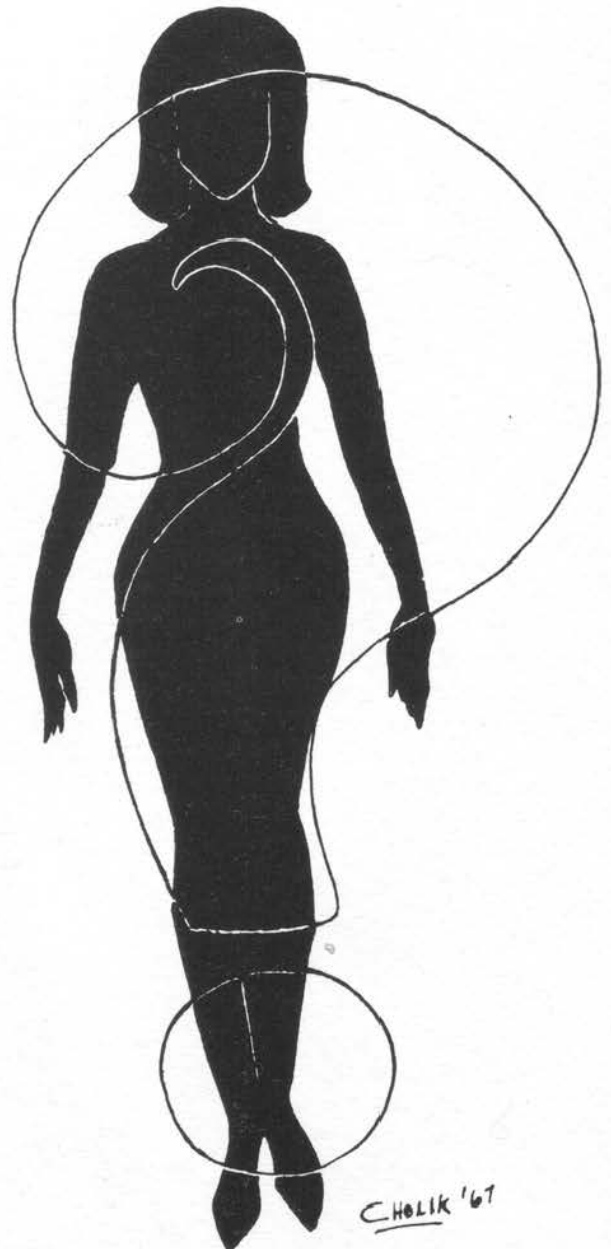

Women are much more talkative than men. I attribute this to high heels which tilt the body forward so that the blood flows to the front of the brain, thus stimulating the speech centers. The fact is a standing woman is a talkative woman; a glance into any restaurant will prove this. Pick a table where there is a young couple seated before a steaming dinner which has been set before them. As they pick up their forks they are startled by a shrill cry of recognition from another young lady on her way out. The young man, napkin in one hand and the other pressed against the table for balance, half rises to a position that resembles the paralyzed crouch of a person in church who thought the prayer was over when it wasn't. The visitor then enters a ten minute conversation with the young lady, touching on homework, brothers, parents, and difficulties with teachers. She finally leaves and the young man sits only to find his dinner is already cold.

Such actions of women are beyond the comprehension of men who expect women to be as level-headed as they are. Men can't understand why women gossip (because men don't.

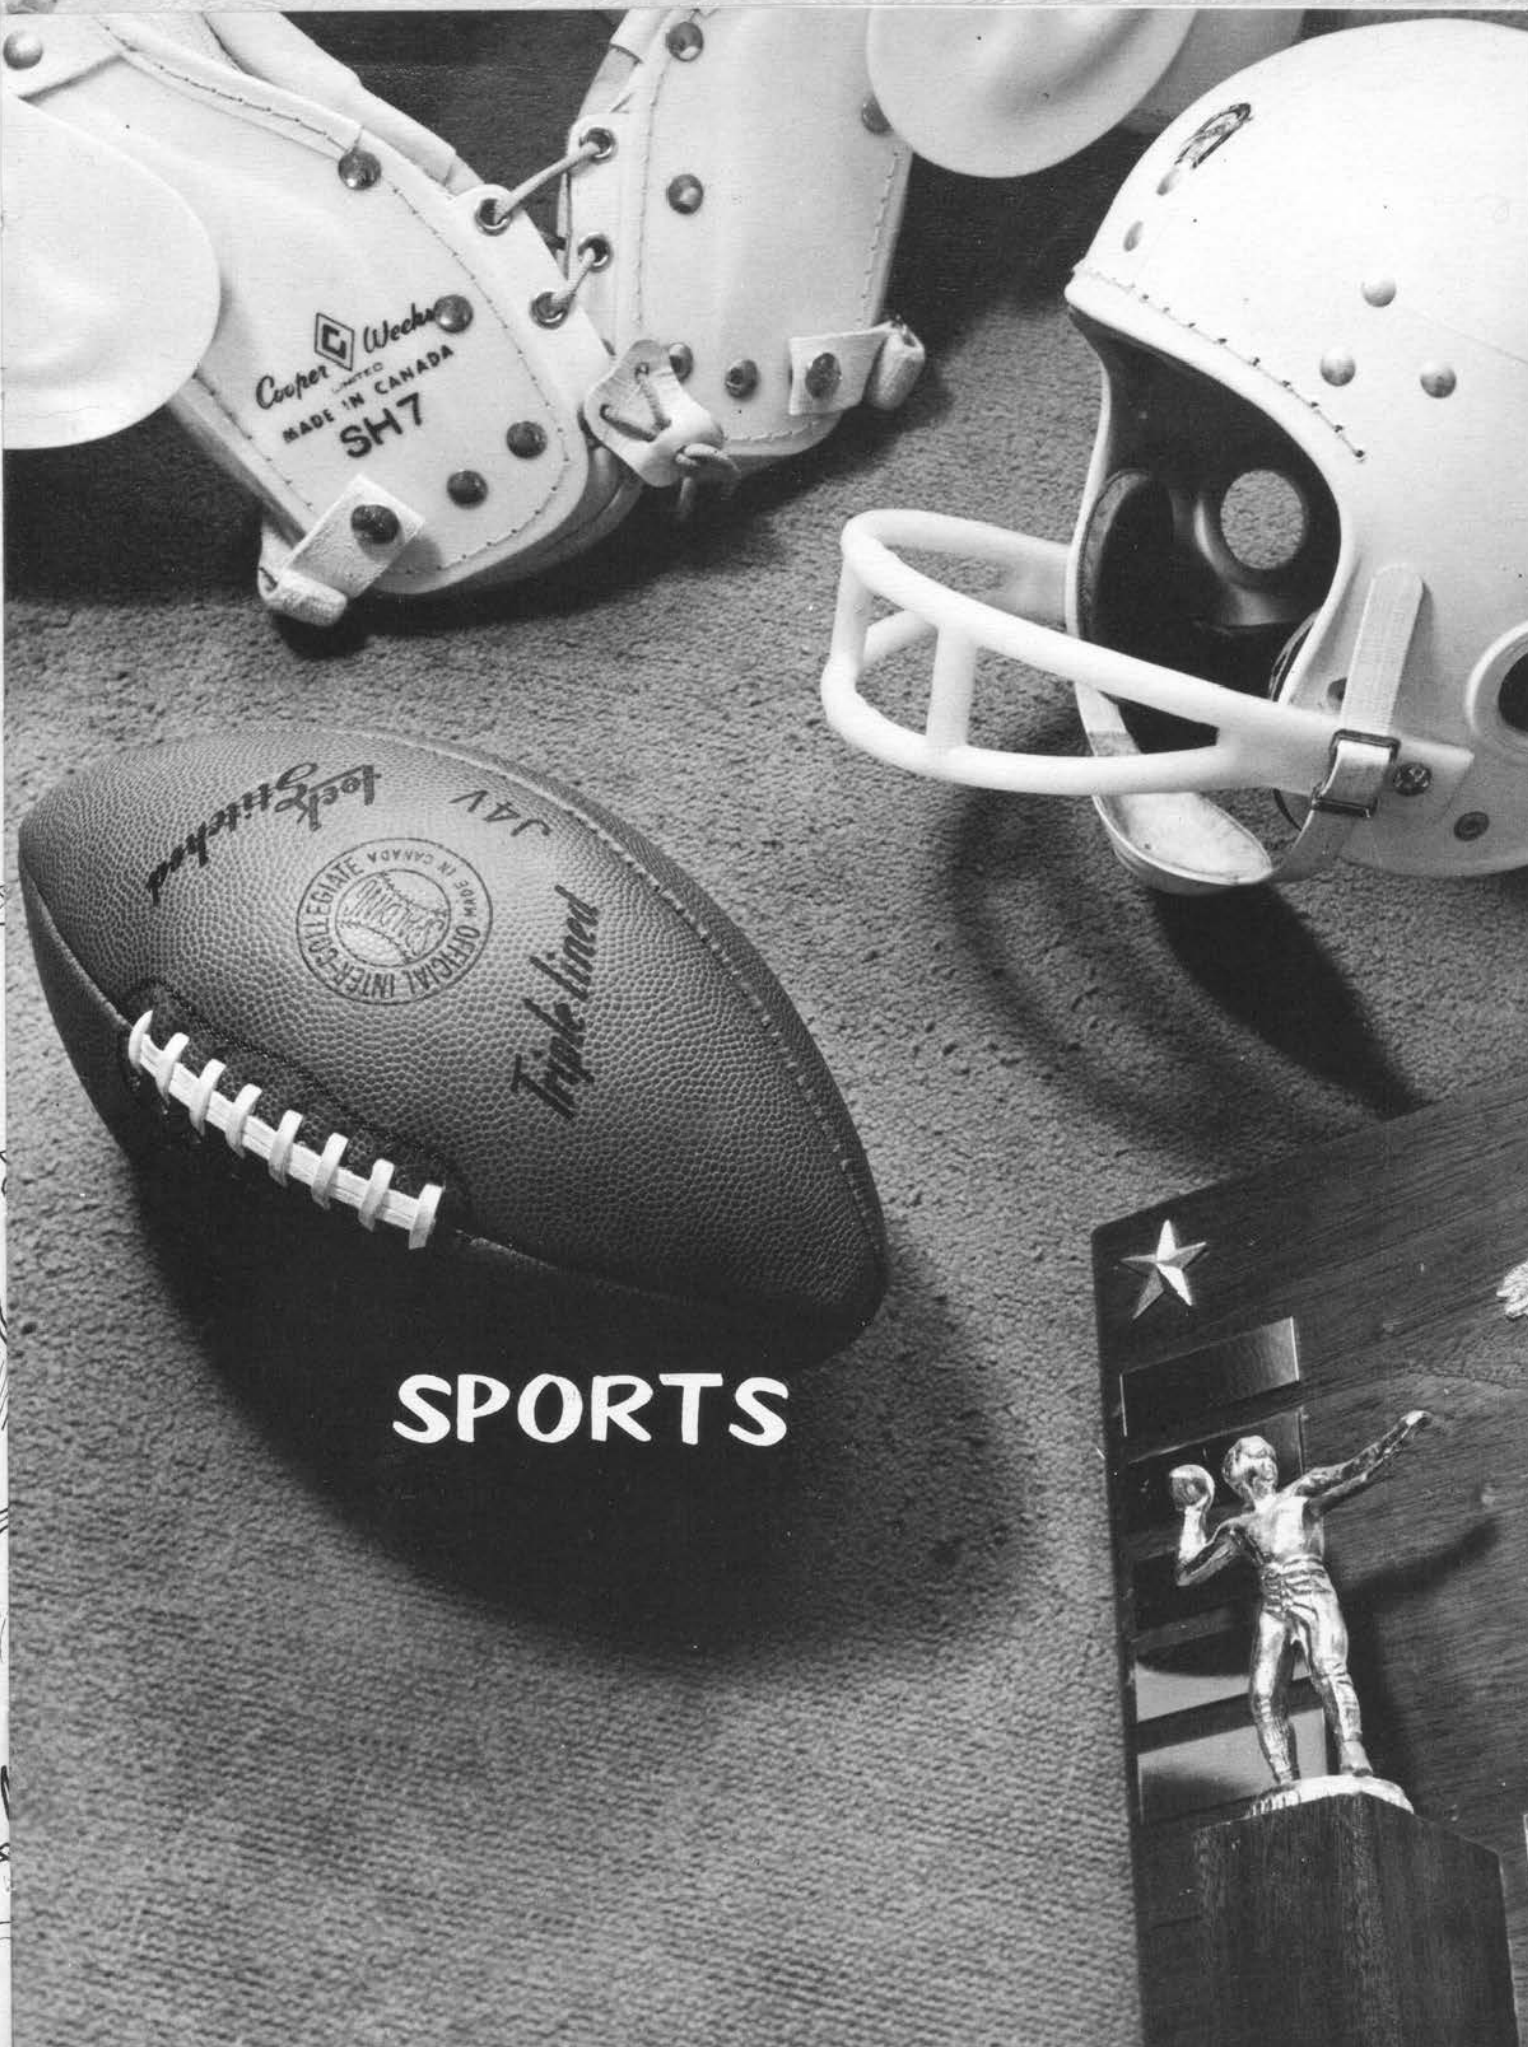

Men possess what is termed an executive mind, and an executive mind is too busy making decisions and handling responsibility to have time for gossip.)

It is because of these few things that men say, "Isn't that just like a woman?" But who would like to live on a planet where there isn't any? Not me! As long as men can say, "Vive la difference!" we are in business.

JUNIOR BOYS SWIMMING

What a year! This was the best year yet for the Junior Boys' Swim Team, winning the W.S.S.A. Championship and also setting many new records at the meet. A few of the stars were Doug White who won both the 100 yard backstroke and the individual medley, and Jim Sweetman who surprised the whole team by winning the 100 yard breaststroke. "Individuals" win events but "Teams" win championships, and this was a real "Team". We would like to thank our coach, Mr. Smart, whose quick wit, intense enthusiasm and complete faith in us made all our work more than worthwhile.

GIRLS SWIMMING

This year the girls swim team started out with a great splash. With the addition of the new Grade Nines and a few interested Tens, the team put on a good show. Four afternoons a week from Sept. to Feb. the team practised diligently under the excellent guidance of our coach, Miss Cunningham. This year for the first time, meets were held in which various schools competed against each other in practice sessions. These proved to be lots of fun and helped us to prepare for the final meet which was held on March 3. In the Western Ontario Swim Meet held at Western University, the whole team, putting forth their best effort, placed fifth among eighteen schools. Individual winners in the Windsor finals were Cathy Green, and Elizabeth Arnott, Cathy Cade and Leslie Vivian. When the final points were added the senior girls came fourth and the junior girls second. Next year even greater results will be achieved.

In this Centennial year, national spirit and school spirit have blended through the halls of K.C.I. Our Centennial projects, the J.M. Donohue Memorial Library and the mural in our new cafetorium have exhibited this intermingling of spirit. There has been another spirit present also, one of co-operation, first of all between the Forum and the student body, who have taken such interest and pride in a common goal, and second, between the students and staff, who have worked hand in hand to accomplish this undertaking - to honour a great man and to laud a growing country. Our projects will be a source of pride for all the students and staff of K.C.I., not just for this coming year, but for a great many in the future.

Chad and Char

K.C.I. is very proud of these two girls, Miss Charlene Beck and Miss Lynne Chadwick, who have been brightening our assemblies with their folk songs. They have been chosen this Centennial Year to perform at Expo, and we know that people there will appreciate them as much as we do. We wish both of them BON CHANCE!

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS FORMED FROM TWO BANKRUPT PRIVATE LINES - 1915

We Honor

"Who has my longest extension cord?" "Who went behind my back and took the best record player in the house?" It is questions like these that we'll miss over the inter-com system from the audio-visual equipment's guardian who is to retire in June. This guardian is Windsor's own - a B.A. graduate from Assumption College in philosophy and arts, an M.A. graduate in Geography from Wayne State, with extra studies pursued at McGill, University of Toronto, and Western.

During his 35 years stay at Kennedy, his main interest has been the teaching of geography, but he has enjoyed science and French also.

Who was the founder of the Friday night Stardust dances? It was Mr. Laframboise, who also supervised them for 14 years.

We wish Mr. Laframboise and his charming wife good luck and great happiness, as they travel to see with their own eyes, all the places seen over the years through the audio-visual equipment.

MR. HENRY LAFRAMBOISE

MR. D. C. HYLAND

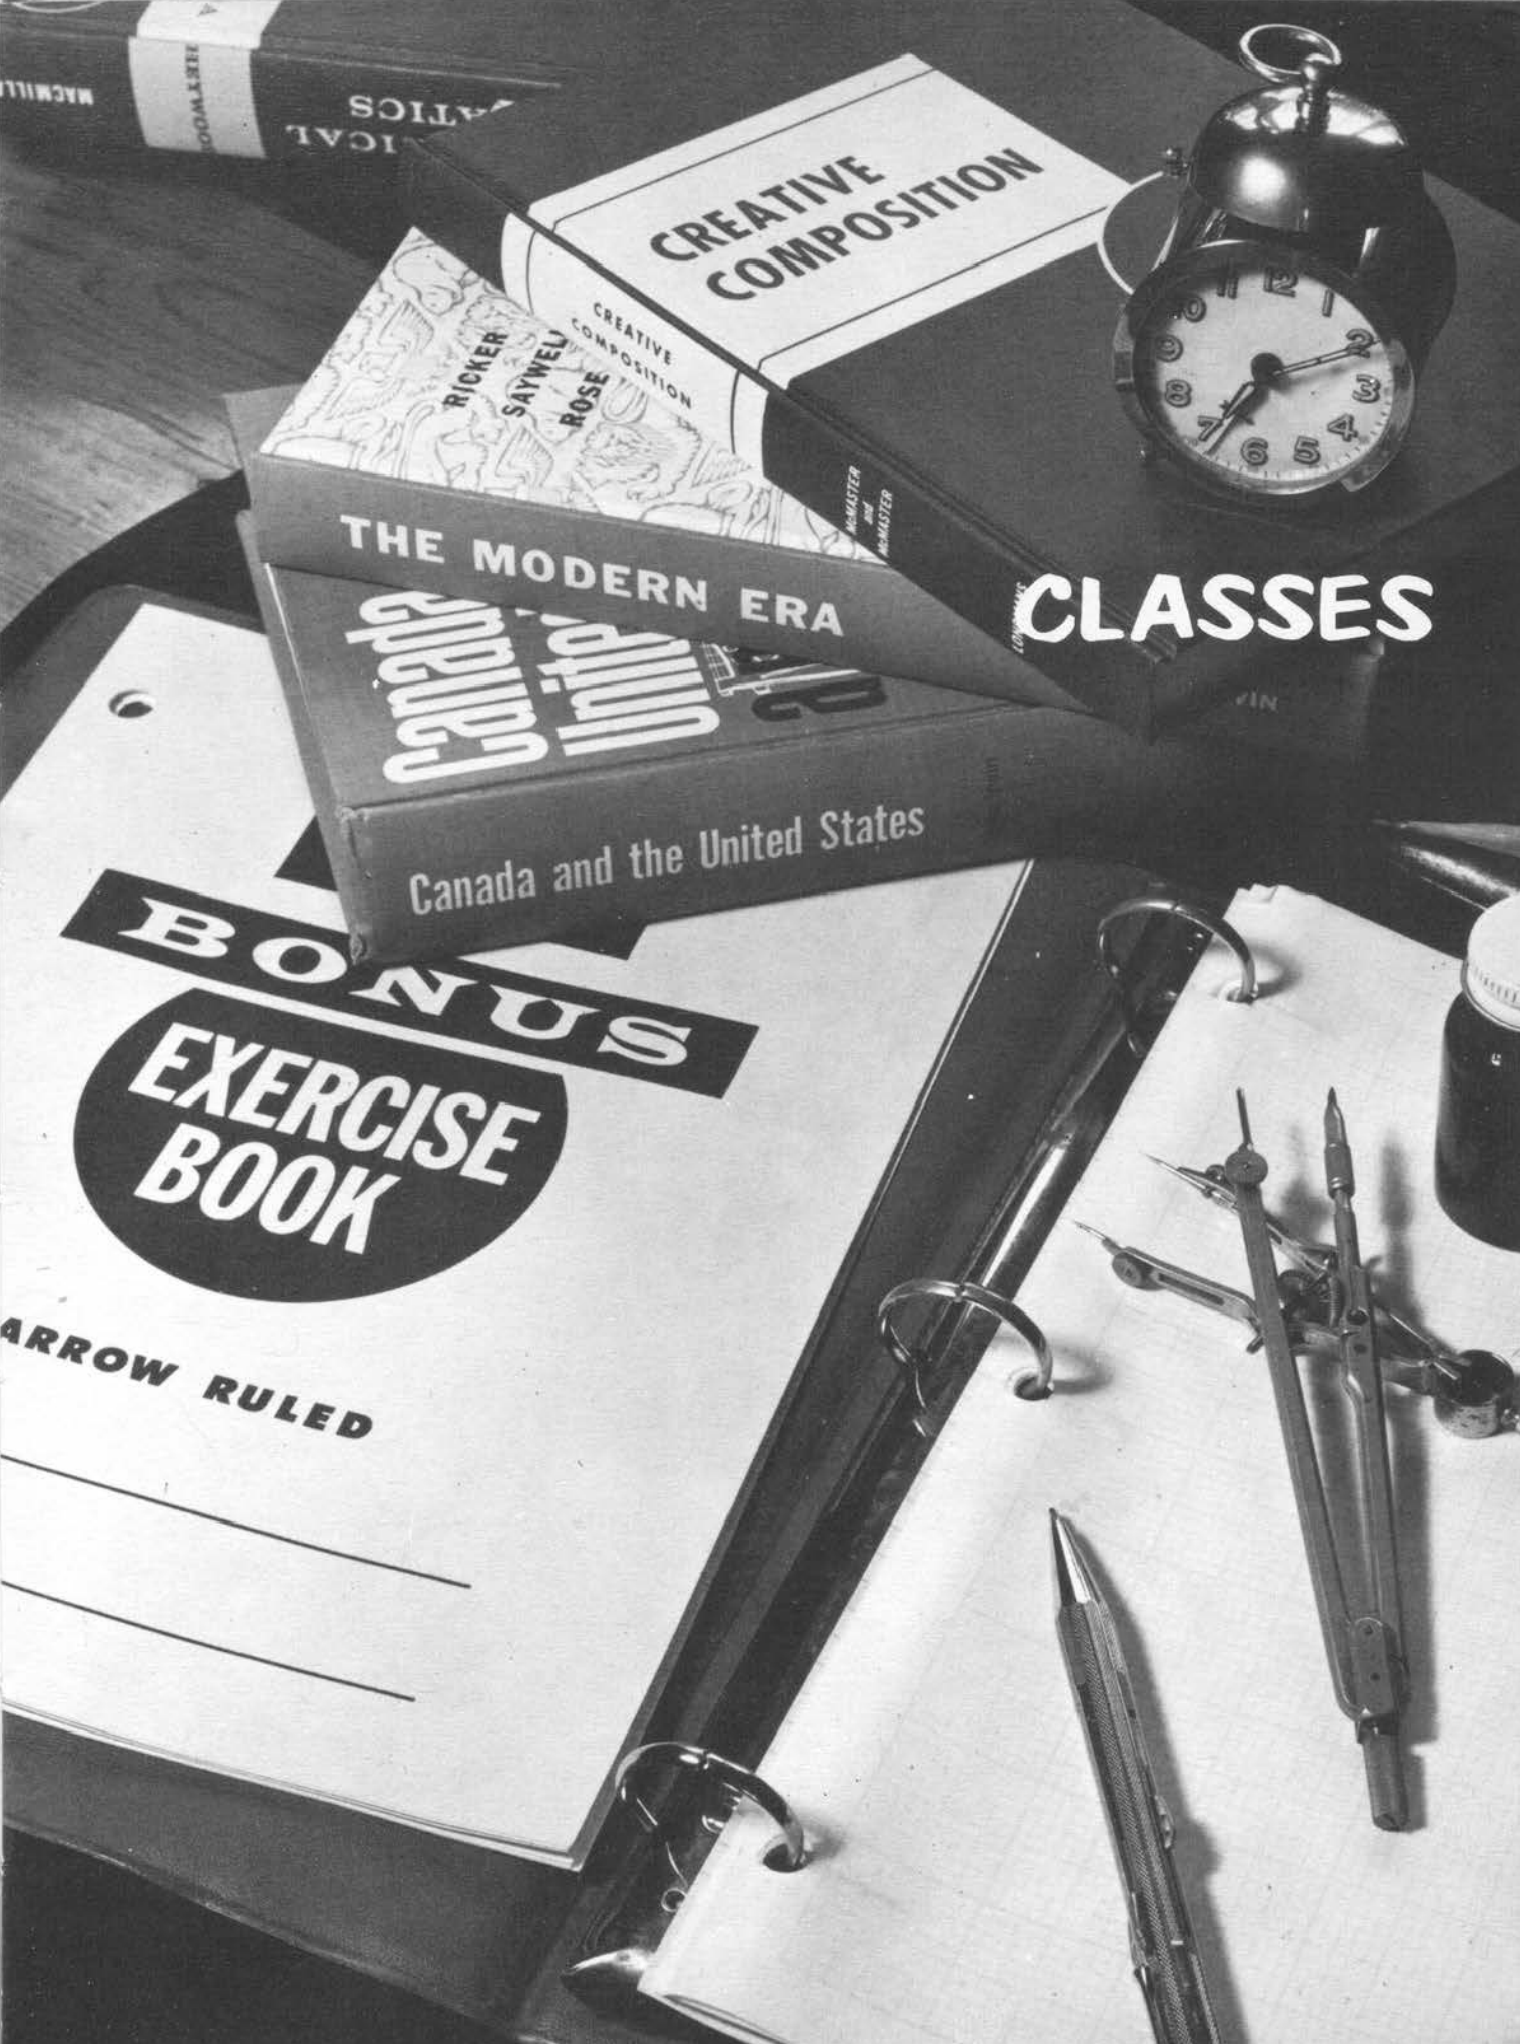

A high calibre of excellence is a characteristic relative to K.C.I. Another longtime relative of the school is Mr. Hyland who has been part of the growing and successful tradition since 1953.

Coming from his native Harrow after graduating from the University of Western Ontario, he taught science and became Head of the Department upon Mr. Thomson's appointment as Principal. When Mr. Krol attained greater distinction last year at Forster Collegiate, Mr. Hyland became our Vice-Principal. M.C. and D.C. - what a combination!

Mr. Hyland's talents are further revealed in his athletic and coaching laurels. He was a coach of champions, holding the reins of the volleyball team for six unbeaten years. Six hockey championship teams were also under his expert guidance.

Mr. Hyland has always enjoyed the keen competitive spirit exemplified by Kennedy athletes, something which he says has been carried over into the academic attitude, and is the cornerstone of K.C.I.'s great tradition. Mr. Hyland is part of that tradition too, and we hope to have him with us for many more years in the future.

One night at the cinema this exchange between a teenager and his girl friend was heard:

"Can you see all right?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Are you in a draught?"

"No."

"Has the man behind you got his feet on your seat?"

"No."

"Mind changing places?" he said.

A boy being bawled out for a poor report card said, What do you think the trouble with me is Dad, heredity or environment?"

Employer to beautiful blonde who has filled in a job application: "Miss Jones under 'Experience' could you be a little more specific than just 'Oh Boy'?"

A fellow, always thought of as quite shy and reserved with girls was driving a girl to the cinema when he suddenly went around a sharp corner and she slid over to his side of the car. She commented on what slippery seats he had. He answered with a slight grin, "I wax them."

At a restaurant an elderly wolf had made several sly, but futile attempts to flirt with the pretty young waitress who was serving him. Finally when she brought dessert, he grew more bold. "My dear," he purred "where have you been all my life?" "Well," chirped the girl matter-of-factly, "for the first forty years I probably wasn't born."

Boy to father: "Here's my report card and one of yours I found hidden in the attic."

WESTERN STYLE

12D

Morning in the little cowtown of McVeyville brings Ken Vidler to open his saloon and admit the town inebriates, Bob Lusk and Paul Wheeler. At noon, three hours later, there is a terrible commotion as down the street comes Kathy Cable and her Temperance Society: Shiela Patterson, Mary Ann Matayas, and Pat Wilson. They picket the saloon while Kathy harangues Ken on the evils of firewater. A shriek is heard, and in comes Regina Veith and her Dance Hall Fillies: Susan Beaumont, Nancy Niswonger, Grace McFarlane, and Rita Nawalany who attack the Temperance ladies. When the first sign of trouble appears, Sheriff Brad Ruddy and Deputy Larry Nolan come in to break it up and pick the ladies off the street. The Sherriff says the Mayor will decide whether the Saloon will close or not. He closes it temporarily and they all go home. Then Dan Niswonger and his cowboys: Ken Shwery, Brian Thompson and Paul Wilson arrive back from a cattle drive, tired and thirsty. When they see the saloon closed, they start to tear it down in anguish. At this moment, Captain Greg Loveridge pulls up with his cavalry: Larry Agla and Ron Royal. They have just fought Chief Terry (Short Scalp) Howarth and his braves: Dave (Valient Heart) Moore, Roy (Scalp Ironer) Westlake, and Rick (Squaw Getter) Woscenski, who won't return to the reservation until they get their beef ration. While subduing the cowboys, the Sheriff, the Temperance Society, and the Fillies return with the mayor, Tony Piccinato. He decides to re-open the saloon, and Kathy (pulling her hair) and her dragons leave muttering. The Fillies do cartwheels and the cowboys shoot off their revolvers and cheer. But now, Ken opens his doors, enters and drags out the inebriates who have been on the premises all the while, and announces he'll be closed for a while because there will be no more firewater shipped in for at least three weeks.

Latin is a language,
At least it used to be,
Once it killed the Romans,
Now it's killing Thirteen C.
Every schoolday morning
Are found in 203
Miss Hope and twenty-five yawnings,
That we're hopeless we agree.
Harry mutters "Um...Um..."
While Marilyn sits there dazed.
Fred whispers, "Hey dum...dum"
While Syd looks on amazed.
Sharon writes an essay
About her boyfriend, Ted,
For the teacher Couchford,
No - I think it's Bed-
Margaret dreams of tennis
While John B. talks to "Vilk".
Larry recopies "français"
And Barry dreams of milk.

Judy continues flustered
Seated closest to Gail Nye.
Susan's hair is clustered,
Carolyn seems so shy.
Marg Prokopchuk with her braces
Asks why Con to Kathy giggles.
"Beth LeBlanc is making faces"
Karen replies, and off she wiggles.
Wanda searches for her textbook
Be it grammar, authors, poses
Mary throws a bewildered look
At the questions Iris poses.
Mary Lou unties her hair
And it dangles in her face.
Lost in the back, Mike slouches there,
With thoughts far from this place.
What destiny awaits them
It seems one body knows,
No...Marilyn wrote this poem,
Mr. Thomson wrote the O's.

It's funny how a little piece of paper can put you in a whole new world

Getting your driver's license makes the whole world a brighter place to live in.

You can move.

Without pestering Mom or Dad to drive you.

Without depending on anybody else.

But now a lot of other people are suddenly depending on you.

Not for rides (although you like the feeling when you give somebody a lift).

But for their lives. And their property.

So don't take chances. Don't try to prove anything when you drive—except that you are qualified to do it.

In every way.
